

QUALITATIVE PROCESS AND PRACTICE RESEARCH IN STRATEGY. A ONE-DAY COMMUNITY-BUILDING GATHERING

BI Norwegian Business School (Oslo), Friday 6 May 2022

Keynote speakers: Richard Whittington, Inger Stensaker & Martin Friesl

Qualitative, process, and practice studies of strategy, change, and entrepreneurship are becoming increasingly common and legitimate in Norway and the rest of Nordic countries. However, many scholars still work in isolation in departments where traditional approaches prevail.

This event is an opportunity to meet, exchange views, and learn from others who adopt a similar research approach and theoretical sensitivity. The aim of the days is developmental and aimed at establishing relationships and community building.

During the day, you will hear from some prestigious scholars, learn what others are working on, receive (and give) feedback on work in progress, and socialize with other like-minded colleagues.

Established scholars, early career researchers, and PhD students from all parts of Norway, other Nordic countries, and beyond are welcome to attend.

The event is organized jointly by BI Oslo Qualitative Research Forum (Davide Nicolini & Renate Kratochvil) and NHH (Inger Stensaker).

Participation is free, but due to Covid, places are limited to 50 participants on a first-come-first-served basis.

Provisional program (10-16)

- Key note by Richard Whittington, Oxford U.
- Research speed dating
- Feedback on papers (Round tables)
- Lunch
- Key note by Inger Stensaker (NHH) & Martin Friesl (Bamberg)
- Speed dating
- Feedback on early work/dissertation chapters (Round tables)
- Social event

---

To participate, please email renate.kratochvil@bi.no no later than 18 February 2022.

If you would like to receive feedback on your work in progress, please attach a one-page abstract explaining the topic & methodology, nature, and status of the piece of work (PhD chapter? Draft paper? Paper under revision?), and what specific issues you would like to receive feedback on from the other participants.

Attendance confirmation will be sent at the beginning of March.

---